Total Expense (TER): This ratio shows the charges, levies and fees relating to the management of the portfolio and is expressed as a percentage of the average net asset value of the portfolio, calculated over the period shown and annualised to the most recently completed quarter. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER should not be regarded as an indication of future TERs.

Transaction Costs (TC): This ratio shows the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the buying and selling of the fund's underlying assets. TC are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impacts fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of fund, investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.

Total Investment Charges (TIC): This ratio is simply the sum of the TER and TC, showing the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the investment of the fund. It should be noted that performance figures account for all costs included in the TIC ratio, so you should not deduct the TIC from performance figures, the performance is already net of the TIC.

Fund review

The High Alpha Fund delivered a positive return during second quarter of 2024 which was marginally behind the benchmark return of 8.2%. While the SA equity component in the Fund returned 9.9% (ahead of benchmark), the 20% invested in offshore equity detracted from returns as international markets underperformed the South African market. The best performing sector for the quarter under review was Financials (18.0%), then Industrials (12.8%) followed by Consumer Discretionary (9.6%). The Fund's best performing stocks on the local bourse were Capitec, FirstRand and Sanlam with the worst performing stocks being Bidcorp, Anheuser-Busch InBev, and Ninety One. Top performers for the offshore holdings were NVIDIA, Taiwan Semiconductor and Alphabet.

Market overview

Despite facing unprecedented shocks, a volatile global geopolitical environment, and global inflation that surged to multi-decade highs, the global economic landscape has demonstrated greater resilience than initially anticipated. Consequently, the outlook for the global economy has been adjusted, with expectations of approximately 3% growth over the next two to three years, supported by monetary accommodation and a disinflationary trend.

Over the past few years, South Africa has endured persistent negative news from muted economic growth, lacklustre growth in corporates earnings, corruption and poor service delivery. Leading up to the May 2024 election, uncertainty clouded the political landscape. However, following the election, we observed an unwind in political risk and a subsequent relief rally in South African assets. These positive developments were anchored in the Government's commitment to evidence-based policy formulation. The ZAR regained its shine and bounced back from its lowest point during the quarter, above R19/$, to breaking through the R18/$ mark with the formation of the Government of National Unity (GNU) that reassured investors of a more business-friendly approach. The Rand remained resilient despite tensions / uncertainty linked to the composition of the new cabinet.

Looking ahead

South Africa's economic growth has been disappointing over the past decade and the near-term outlook remains challenging given a restrictive monetary environment and infrastructure blockages, which have had a pronounced negative impact on household and consumer confidence. Despite this, we are also cognisant that it is not all doom and gloom as the shifting political landscape brings some positive signs. Political certainty stemming from the GNU and economic reforms are set to drive growth. Government initiatives, namely Operation Vulindlela, aim to stimulate sustainable growth which in time will attract foreign capital and unlock value for investors. We believe nominal interest rates have peaked, with a view of at least one interest rate cut of 25 bps during the second half of this year. The Fund's diversified holdings across businesses and industries and our offshore exposure continue to put the Fund in good stead, enabling it to navigate through uncertain times ahead. Valuations for the domestic equity market remain attractive but the investment environment requires caution and vigilance to extract opportunities in the market and a heightened focus on risk management. We aim for sustainable investment results, putting quality and consistency at our core. Our strategy has remained unchanged, and we will continue to invest in high quality businesses that have wide and sustainable moats and the ability to deliver attractive compound cashflow growth through business cycles, at compelling valuations.
